

David Lockard is a licensed professional engineer in Alaska, with a Masters of Science in Mechanical Engineering from the University of Wisconsin Solar Energy Lab. He is currently the State Program Manager for geothermal and ocean energy development. He is an experienced construction manager for rural Alaskan energy projects including bulk fuel tank farms, diesel powerhouses and hydroelectric systems since 1995, and a state resource for technical information on fuel cells and energy efficiency.