

Paul Metz is currently the Professor of Geological Engineering, College of Engineering and Mines, University of Alaska Fairbanks. Professor Metz completed a Master of Business Administration Degree with an emphasis in Engineering Economics and Finance and a Master of Science Degree in Economic Geology at the University of Alaska followed by a Doctor of Philosophy in Mining Geology from the Royal School of Mines, Imperial College in 1991. In addition to teaching he has conducted research on mineral exploration, mining geology, and mineral transportation economics, as well as engineering site selection and evaluation for railroads, roads, pipelines, and airports, publishing more than sixty professional papers. He served two terms as the Chair of the Department of Mining and Geological Engineering and was appointed Director of the Mineral Industry Research Laboratory in 2006.