

Lance Miller is the Executive Director of the Juneau Economic Development Council which he joined in the fall of 2000. Prior to his present position he worked in the minerals industry throughout Alaska, the western U.S., Mexico and Asia where he held various technical and managerial positions with major mining companies as well as president of a start up exploration company. Lance holds a Ph.D. in economic and structural geology from University of Arizona, a M.S. from the University of Alaska and a B.S. from Stanford University.

Outside of the JEDC he is on the board of the Resource Development Council, the Foundation for Glacier and Environmental Research, a member of the Alaska Minerals Commission and in 2006 was appointed to the Alaska Climate Impact Assessment Commission. Lance has authored and co-authored over 29 scientific publications and presentations in the geological sciences arena. He is a registered professional geologist and a fellow of Sigma Xi.